DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1-3 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Butterworth et al. (6,498,632) in view of Dultz et al. (6,331,910) further in view of Bryars (5,986,815).

Regarding Claims 1-3, Butterworth et al. disclose a color reflective ferroelectric liquid crystal light valve with three spatial light modulators and increased light throughput. Ferroelectric liquid crystal based light valve comprises a light input, a light output, a beam splitter, a color separator, reflective spatial light modulators, and a switchable half-wave plate. Light polarized to a first direction is received through the light input. Light from the light input and reflected by the spatial light modulators is output from the light output. The reflective spatial light modulators are structured as quarter-wave plates. The beam splitter has orthogonal directions of maximum transmissivity and maximum reflectivity, one of which is parallel to the first direction. The beam splitter is located and aligned relative to the light input, the light output, and the color separator to transmit or reflect the light from the light input towards the color separator, and the to reflect or transmit, respectively, towards the light output the reflected by each of the spatial light modulators and having direction polarization substantially orthogonal to the first direction. The switchable half-wave plate is located between the beam splitter and the color separator is structure as half-wave plate. The switchable half-wave plate inverts the sense of the light valve during the balance period of each display period to enable the light wave to generate a positive image, and therefore be illuminated, during the balance period in addition to during the illumination. Butterworth et al. fail to disclose the required electric field characteristics and the light wavelength characteristics. However, Dultz et al. disclose an arrangement and method for electrically controlling the intensity of unpolarized light where the required electric field characteristics are disclosed. Furthermore, Bryars, discloses systems, methods and apparatus for improving the contrast ratio in reflective imaging systems utilizing color splitters where the required light wavelength characteristics are disclosed.

It would have been obvious to one of having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include the required electric field characteristics and the light wavelength characteristics in Butterworth et al. as taught by Dultz et al. and Bryars et al. in order to have a semiconductor display device with better performance.

2. Claims 4-18 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Butterworth et al. (6,498,632) in view of Dultz et al. (6,331,910) further in view of Bryars (5,986,815) further in view of Aritake et al. (6,478,429)

Regarding Claims 4-18, Butterworth et al., Dultz et al., and Bryars et al. fail to disclose the required prism in the required manner. However, Aritaket et al. disclose a reflective projector where the required prism in the required manner is disclosed.

It would have been obvious to one of having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include the required prism in the required manner in Butterworth et al. ,

Dultz et al., and Bryars as taught Aritake et al. in order to have a semiconductor display device with better performance.
